If you don't already have a copy of Photoshop, then contact the manufacturer for a copy. While the free trial version may not be sufficient for you, the version is generally worth the money. If you purchase from a computer store, make sure that you purchase from a refurbished store. New computers cannot have all the features that Photoshop has, so they are not usually ideal for Photoshop. New computers generally come with older versions of Windows, not Windows 10. The same is true for Macs. Photoshop requires a powerful computer with at least 4GB of RAM, a 3.2 GHz processor, and at least 1GB of hard drive space. Figure 3-5 shows a Macintosh computer that can run Photoshop. Illustrations by Rod Argent Figure 3-5: Photoshop needs a powerful computer to run correctly. Using Photoshop's Basic Functions Photoshop offers some basic but powerful functions that enable you to create professional-looking images that show a high degree of control and precision. These functions are grouped together as Artistic Controls, and you access them on the fly in menus and toolbars. (See Figure 3-6.) Figure 3-6: Many of the same menu items appear in a variety of toolbars, enabling the same functions in different ways. Artistic Controls consists of various menus and toolbars that enhance and simplify the use of Photoshop. The menus are specific to each tool. An artist-based tool such as Photoshop itself contains many tools and feature menus. You can make drastic changes without making selections and is a common method of creating complex images. Two menus, Save and Undo, are used for any type of change made to your file. While you're in the process of drawing an image, you can make changes in the graphics tools that are not saved. If you need to reverse a change, you can use the Undo (U) and Redo (R) commands. The Toolbox allows you to select additional tools as needed. The largest section of Artistic Controls is called the Layers palette. This palette has options for image manipulation and is where you create new layers. The Tools palette is another large section in Artistic Controls. It can be accessed in a variety of ways. Either directly or from a menu, you can access this palette and then select one of the available tools to quickly access most of the tools in Photoshop. The Keyboard and the Help File are also at your disposal

Q: What is the reason that if we have White Knight's Pinwheel Form, we would have to rest for five minutes between uses? In the fifth moon's Tsukuyomi Chapter (page 191-192, chapter 125) we see three spells (White Knight's Pinwheel Form, Shikai Itan, and Kagutsuchi no Jutsu) cast on the same person. Here's my question (please read it before you vote to close it because I know this is a duplicate): When White Knight's Pinwheel Form is activated, the caster has no other choices but to rest for five minutes. However, the caster can activate Shikai Itan and use it without resting for five minutes. In other words, if Shikai Itan is activated, we do not have to rest for five minutes between uses. Now, when the caster has Kagutsuchi no Jutsu activated, would the caster be able to activate Shikai Itan without resting for five minutes or is the caster's Shikai Itan power completely linked with White Knight's Pinwheel Form? A: This is not something I can answer definitively, but I can say that this is a universal rule for all GAREaves known to mankind (as well as some not-so-universal GAREaves). Their write-up (along with casting time), [...] allows one-of-a-kind results without additional downtime. When activated, an effect of this level lasts for five minutes. When used, the effect lasts for one minute, is phrased in the passive voice, which implies that's the intended result. That phrasing suggests that this is the unmodified duration, not the post-activation duration. There's also this bit (which may or may not refer to the duration issue): This is a unique augmentation that allows one-of-a-kind results without additional downtime. [...] A level-3 GAREave must be released whenever a level-3 or greater surge is removed. All of the GAREaves the Tsukiyomi no Jutsu produces have stated release times. For example, Shikai Itan says This 1.3 [meters] in diameter, orange-colored GAREave can make one try to destroy everything in its radius. [...] When activated, this GAREave requires one minute of downtime, and then five minutes of

A dog was mauled to death by a second dog in a Gilroy backyard on Friday and police are searching for the owners. Officers were called to the 900 block of McAvoy Lane about 5 p.m. Friday after a neighbor found a young dog suffering from multiple wounds. The 2-year-old mixed-breed dog named Rocket was stabbed in the head and face multiple times and lost his right eye. The owner of the dog, a Border Collie named Capone, also was injured with stab wounds, possibly to the head, and was taken to an animal hospital, police said. The attack prompted city animal services officials to open a shelter for the dog and to place him under a temporary hold. The owner voluntarily surrendered the dog and Capone was transferred to a Gilroy animal hospital. The dog and owner will undergo rabies testing. An investigation by officers revealed that a vehicle, possibly a red Mazda, parked in the backyard was involved in the attack. A person inside the vehicle tried to console the owner of the injured dog but the person then left. The owner also drove away from the scene. Investigators said they believe the dog attack occurred around 3 p.m. or 4 p.m. Anyone with information about the incident can contact police at 725-85-565 or Gilroy Crime Stoppers at 408-955-TIPS.
